THE GOLDEN RULE

“See No Evil, Hear No Evil, Speak No Evil”

The expression is thought to have travelled to Japan from China courtesy of a Buddhist monk carrying stories of an Indian god Vadrja with multiple arms covering his eyes, ears and mouth. Over centuries, either through Buddhism, Taoism, Shinto or the Koshin, this maxim evolved into the trio of primates we know today.

In more recent times it has been interpreted in many ways including ‘to speak of the devil’ & ‘turning a blind eye’ or by Gandhi who used the monkeys teaching of ‘do no evil and no evil will come to you’

It is a centuries old debate on which it seems people will never agree. Perhaps we will never know from where the three monkeys originated.

In 2010 the Three Monkeys made it to New York.
